DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d). The certified copy has been filed in Application No. 10752706, filed on 1/8/2004. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Information Disclosure Statement

2. The information disclosure statement (IDS) submitted on 1/8/2004 and 78/30/2004 is/are acknowledged. The submission is in compliance with the provisions of 37 CFR 1.97. Accordingly, the information disclosure statement is being considered by the examiner.

Claim Objections

3. Claim 1 is objected to because of the following informalities: "appearance period estimation means" recited in line 17-18 should be "appearance time estimation means" to maintain consistency with previously used terminology. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Art Unit: 3736

5. Claims 1-41 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kodama et al (US Pat No. 6402699).

6. In regards to Claim 1, Kodama et al disclose a female physical condition management apparatus comprising:

physical condition data acquiring means, referred to as "data input device" (41) and "electrodes" (21-22, 51-52, 55);

appearance time estimation means, referred to as "CPU" (45) (Col.6, line 56-58);
estimation accuracy determination means, referred to as "decision making unit" (Col.2, line 56-60);

display means (42) (Col.6, line 50-52);

wherein the physical condition data acquiring means acquires data about physical conditions of a female, which appear in a monthly cycle, i.e. menstruation start/end date (Col.6, line 34-35);

the appearance time estimation means estimates the oncoming times of appearance of the physical conditions appearing in a monthly cycle of the female based on the acquired data about the physical conditions (Col.6, line 56-58);

the estimation accuracy determination means determines the accuracy of the estimations made by the appearance period estimation means, wherein accuracy determination is inherent in a comparison between present data and historical record (Col.2, line 56-60);

and the display means displays data about the estimated times of appearance (Col.6, line 50-52) and data about the determined estimation accuracy (i.e. historical record) (Col.2, line 25-27).

7. In regards to Claim 2, Kodama et al disclose the estimation accuracy determination means determines the accuracy of the estimations made by the appearance time estimation means based on the number of times the data about the physical conditions appearing in a monthly cycle of the female has been acquired by the physical condition data acquiring means in the past. Specifically, Kodama et al disclose making a decision by comparing present data with historical record, wherein the nature of such comparison inherently constitutes accuracy determination based upon the number of times data has been acquired in the past (Col.2, line 56-60).

8. In regards to Claim 3, Kodama et al disclose the data about the estimation accuracy which is displayed by the display means (Col.2, line 25-27) is a probability that the physical conditions appearing in a monthly cycle of the female actually appear at the estimated times of appearance, wherein such probability is inherent in the comparison of present data with historical record, as described above (Col.2, line 56-60).

9. In regard to Claims 4-5, Kodama et al disclose the physical condition data acquiring means as used by the female to input the data about the physical conditions appearing in a monthly cycle (Col.6, line 34-35).

Art Unit: 3736

10. In regard to Claims 6-7, Kodama et al disclose the physical condition data acquiring means measures physical data, i.e. impedance (Col.6, line 25-28) of the female and acquires the data about the physical conditions appearing in a monthly cycle of the female based on the measured physical data (Col.5, line 20-34), best seen in Figure 2.

11. In regard to Claims 8-9, Kodama et al disclose the physical data of the female as the basal body temperature of the female (Col.8, line 35-45).

12. In regard to Claims 10-11, Kodama et al disclose the physical data of the female as the bioelectric impedance of the female (Col.7, line 16-30).

13. In regard to Claims 12-21, Kodama et al disclose the data about the physical conditions appearing in a monthly cycle of the female, which is acquired by the physical condition data acquiring means, is the start date of menstruation of the female (Col.6, line 34).

14. In regard to Claims 22-31, Kodama et al disclose the data about the physical conditions appearing in a monthly cycle of the female, which is acquired by the physical condition data acquiring means, is the ovulation date of the female, wherein Kodama et al disclose inputting the start and ending states of menstruation, wherein said ovulation date is directly related to the start and ending date of menstruation, thus an input of said start and ending menstruation dates constitutes an ovulation date (Col.6, line 34-35).

15. In regard to Claims 32-41, Kodama et al disclose the data about the physical conditions appearing in a monthly cycle of the female, which is acquired by the physical condition data acquiring means, is the number of days in the monthly cycle of the female (Col.7, line 13-14).

Conclusion

16. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Baba et al (US Pub No. 20020013521 and 20030073923) both disclose female physical condition managing apparatuses.
